Association for Internship Training in Clinical Neuropsychology

AITCN

www.aitcn.org

What is AITCN?

AITCN's goals are to:

- Advocate for and promote the concerns of internship training in clinical neuropsychology
- Inform psychologists and neuropsychologists, members of related disciplines, and the general public about internship training and related activities in clinical neuropsychology

Through policy discussion we aim to gain consensus on issues related to training in neuropsychology and to share our position with other major organizations in clinical neuropsychology.

Why should programs join AITCN?

AITCN strives to represent the diversity of programs offering training in neuropsychology at the internship level.

Advantages to AITCN program members include:

- Participation in discussions of challenges specific to internship training in clinical neuropsychology
- Profile of member programs on our website (www.aitcn.org) and Facebook page
- Eligibility of staff for the AITCN Mentor Award

What should students know about AITCN?

AITCN provides resources for students at all levels of training. Our website includes:

- Articles of interest for trainees, including tips on applying for internship and rounding out clinical training
- Profiles of member programs
- Information about our AITCN Mentor Award, which provides awards for a mentor and the nominating student
